

Launch Plan

Week 1 — Lock the Story

By the end of the week, we should have:

- ☒ Kickstarter Campaign North Star
- ☒ One-sentence campaign message
- ☒ One-paragraph campaign story
- ☒ Primary audience
- ☒ Reward tiers finalized with Bill
- ☒ Funding goal and stretch goals confirmed
- ☒ "Why Kickstarter?" answered in one paragraph

Then write one sentence that becomes your litmus test for every creative decision.

If this doesn't help restore trust to digital communication, it doesn't belong in the campaign.

---

Week 2 — Build the Script

1. Hero Kickstarter Video (3–5 minutes)

This is the campaign.

2. Bill Interview

A conversational piece that establishes credibility.

3. Product Demonstration

"Here's how it works."

4. Thunderbird Beta Demo

Show something real.

5. Thirty-second teaser

For LinkedIn, X, YouTube, etc.

Every one of those should be scripted before anyone turns on a camera.

---

Week 3 — Production

Shoot

Capture far more footage than we'll need.

Bill explaining.

B-roll.

Screens.

People using email.

Phones.

Hands.

Reaction shots.

Anything that supports the story.

AI Google Flow Video

---

Week 4 — Polish and Launch Assets

Edit.

Music.

Graphics.

Animations.

Kickstarter page.

Images.

Reward graphics.

FAQ.

Press kit.

Launch emails.

Social media schedule.

Everything should already exist before launch day.

---

As well, the campaign needs a proof moment.

One moment where the audience says:

"Oh."

That could be:

- A live demo.
- A side-by-side comparison.
- Bill showing a phishing email.
- Thunderbird working.
- A simple animation.

Whatever it is, it has to be unforgettable.

---

Create document

The Story Deck

Not PowerPoint.

Just a working document.

Every page answers one question.

1. What is the problem?
2. Why hasn't it been solved?
3. Why now?
4. Why Bill?
5. Why PhishFlagger?
6. Why Kickstarter?
7. Why back today?
8. What happens if we succeed?

If someone can read those eight pages and understand the campaign, you've done your job.

---

Finally...

If I were joining your team for the next month, the very next thing I'd work on wouldn't be the Kickstarter page.

It would be Bill's interview.

Not the final script—but the questions.

Because I have a feeling the best lines in the entire campaign are still inside Bill's head.

Somewhere in seven years of working on PhishFlagger are the moments that made him refuse to give up: the first time he realized email trust was fundamentally broken, the reaction he got at Black Hat, the decision to make protection available to people using free email, the setbacks that almost stopped the project.

Those aren't just interview answers—they're the emotional backbone of the campaign. If you capture those stories well, the Kickstarter page and the videos will have something authentic to build on.